Great start for Eden It's Time Campaign

The It's Time campaign to involve the Eden community with the future developments in Snug Cove commenced very successfully over the weekend, the President of POEM, Fritz Drenkhahn said today.

Nearly 1000 pamphlets were distributed and hundreds of people wanted explanations of the marina and cruise ship proposals and how they would affect the local economy.

Overwhelmingly Eden people want jobs and investment to help revitalise their town.

There is also concern about economic activity during the tourist off season.

The combination of the two projects-a large commercial marina and an extension of the breakwater wharf - is clearly very strongly supported, almost without dissent.

Revitalising the Snug Cove precinct is a priority and several people pointed to the success of Bermagui.

The long waiting lists for marina berths in Bermagui and Batemans Bay were also noted.

A pamphlet reprint has been ordered and the campaign is continuing and extending to the smaller communities in the Eden region until, hopefully, the issues are well and comprehensively understood at a local level.
